BECOMING A MEMBER OF THE PTC

Membership is open worldwide to anyone or any entity interested in the Pacific hemisphere and involved with telecommunications, broadcasting, informatics, or digital media and associated fields, within the following categories:

- For-Profit Entities<sup>1</sup> are organizations of an essentially commercial nature.
- Non-Profit Entities<sup>2</sup> are defined officially as such within their country of origin. Examples include government ministries and departments, educational institutions, foundations, international organizations, associations, and charities. Public or parastatal corporations such as PTs are not considered nonprofit entities.
- Individual<sup>3</sup> members include professional researchers, academics, and retired telecoms professionals who have made a notable contribution to the telecoms field. If your organization is already a PTC member, you may become an individual member in addition to your entity's membership.
- Affiliate<sup>3</sup> membership is available to organizations which are unable, because of by-laws or other restrictions, to become full PTC members. Such entities may become affiliate members of the PTC, if eligible. Affiliate members may neither vote in PTC elections nor hold office, but they may enjoy all other benefits of membership.

- Student membership is open to bona fide full-time students at reduced rates.
- 1 An entity must have a major interest in the Pacific hemisphere or be able to show a relationship to and interest in the development of telecommunications in the area.
  - 2 An individual member may represent neither an entity nor his or her own firm. Individual membership is open neither to a person who is an officer or owner of a profit-making operation which is not an entity member of the Council, nor to a person who is in a policy-making position with the capability to influence an organization to become a member of PTC.
  - 3 Proof must be presented that the applicant or the applicant's organization is not legally qualified to apply for membership in one of the other categories.
